Art Unit: 2833

1. This application has been examined. Claims 1-8 are pending in this application.

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1, and 4-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wu (USPN 5,879,169).

As per claim 1, Wu discloses in fig. 4a, a connector comprising: a block-like insulator (12) having a first surface (30) and a second surface (38) opposite to said first surface, said first surface confronting a first connection object (IC card, not shown), said second surface(38) confronting a second connection object (PC board, 100), and a plurality of conductive contacts (16) each electrically connecting said first connection object(IC card) to said second connection object(Pcboard, 100), each of said conductive contacts comprising: a retention portion (18,20) held by said insulator, a contact portion (28) extending from one end of said retention portion and projecting over said first surface so as to contact said first connection object, and a connecting portion (40) extending from the other end of said retention portion and projecting over said second surface so as to be connected to said second connection object (100), said insulator having a standoff region (36) which is formed at a boundary between said second surface and a surface (top surface of 100) adjacent to said second surface and enables a mounting component be placed in said standoff region and mounted on said second connection object, said contacts being disposed in predetermined positions of said insulator excluding said standoff region.

As per claim 4, Wu discloses wherein each of said contacts has a spring portion for giving springiness to said contact portion (28), said insulator having a plate portion biasing said spring portion in advance. See fig. 4a-b.

As per claim 5, Wu discloses wherein said insulator has a mounting wall portion (46), said retention portion of each contact (18,20) being fitted into said mounting wall portion from the outside.

As per claim 6, Wu discloses wherein each of said contacts has a spring portion for giving springiness to said connecting portion.

As per claim 7, Wu discloses wherein said insulator has a mounting portion (42) approaching to confront said second connection object, each of said contacts extending along said mounting portion to have said connecting portion at an end portion thereof.

As per claim 8, Wu discloses connecting portions of the contacts are arrayed in one line at an interval therebetween.

4. Claims 2-3 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Art Unit: 2833

5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art of record does not explicitly teach an insulator having a mounting portion between two standoff regions.
